Still resolved to die, he fired again, but the sub-conscious desire to live was strong yet and he ducked again. The bullet followed his scalp. Surprised to find himself still alive, he aimed a third bullet at his head, and a third time ducked involuntarily. When Policeman Meade found him he was looking at the revolver with a puzzled air.

Letter From Salvation Army.

Mr. Editor and People of Barre: In some unaccountable way the report has been spread about the city that a Salvation Army soldier was recently arrested for intoxication. This is an error. No Salvation Army soldier has been arrested or has a Salvation Army soldier been guilty of being intoxicated. All persons who attend the Salvation Army are not soldiers. I am not willing that the public should entertain the idea that persons in the army are composed of such persons as those who are indulging in drink or other sins. If any soldier should be guilty of intoxication he would not long remain a soldier. It is my desire to have a good corps composed of respectable good people. The public are at liberty to watch the lives of Salvation Army soldiers and may rest assured that any one who does not live an upright life will not be allowed to remain a soldier very long, while I am in command of Barre.

Respectfully,
Capt. Robert Thorne.GEO. D. WEBB

A LEADING GRANITE MAN

Victim of Accident on Boston & Albany R. R. Late Yesterday, Was President of the Webb Construction Company of Worcester, Mass.Worcester, Mass., Dec. 29.—While returning from a business visit to Boston yesterday afternoon, George Deland Webb of this city, president of the Webb Granite and Construction company and one of the leading granite men of New England, fell from the Boston & Albany train in North Grafton and was instantly killed. Mr. Webb was not well Tuesday night, but went to Boston yesterday morning. It is supposed that he was afflicted with a faint spell and that he went to the rear platform of his car, which was the last one on the train, to get more air.

In his fall he plunged 60 feet down an embankment, and after the train had been stopped and run back the passengers found the body. There was a fracture at the base of the skull. His body was brought to this city. Charles F. Webb was the station to meet his father, and when he saw the body on the stretcher and recognized it as that of his father he collapsed. The undertaking room, where the body was taken, are those of Waldo E. Sessions, who was Mr. Webb's son-in-law. Mr. Sessions had been notified that a body was coming, but he was given a great shock when he learned it was that of his father-in-law.

Mr. Webb was born in Barre, Mass., April 16, 1854, and as a young man started in the granite business. He came to Worcester in 1873 and began business on a small scale in New Worcester. In 1879 he opened a quarry at what is known as Millstone hill. Then he gradually branched out, until he was the owner of quarries in Fitzwilliam and Marlboro, N. H., and at Milford in this state.
In 1891 he organized the Webb Granite & Construction company, of which he was president and manager. His building operations extended over the entire country. Among the buildings constructed by his company are the Back Bay station in Boston, the Somerset hotel of Boston, the Worcester county courthouse, the courthouse at Cleveland, the Holy Cross college additions, and a large number of churches. He also furnished a large part of the granite used in the construction of the new Pennsylvania station in New York.

He employed nearly 800 men at his various quarries and works. Recently he organized the Webb Granite Saw company, for the purpose of manufacturing a granite saw, the patent of which he purchased and which is said to be a remarkable invention.

In 1875 he was married to Miss Abby Holman Barnard of New York, who survives him. He is also survived by a brother, John, and five children—John, Charles F., who was in business with him, and three daughters, Marie, wife of Waldo E. Sessions; Maud, wife of William F. Thompson of New York; and Jennie, wife of Harry H. Sherman, who was in business with Mr. Webb.

Mr. Webb was a prominent member of the Masonic fraternities, including Worcester County commandery, K. T., a member of the Worcester club, the Exchange club of Boston, and he was the retiring president of the Commonwealth club. Besides his home in Worcester, he owned a beautiful summer residence at Fitzwilliam, N. H.

Mr. Webb was well known in Barre, particularly among the granite men.
The granite saw invention which is mentioned in the above dispatch was invented by a Northfield young man, Roy Chase and Amos Lanier, who sold the invention to Mr. Webb about a year ago. Barre friends of Mr. Webb were notified by telegraph this morning.

POULTRY SCORING

Those Already Announced Are Given—Much Interest Being Taken.

The scoring of the birds at the Vermont Poultry Association show was concluded by the judges this forenoon, and the officers are are nearly 100, and it is expected that this work will be completed to-day, so that the winners of the cups and other prizes will be announced to-night or interest in the exhibition is shown by the large number of people who visit the hall every day. The association has never had the coops arranged to better advantage for the public to inspect the poultry than this year, and the many
